

SYNERGIST

True science
teaches one to be ignorant,
and always to doubt.

Claude Darnard

We, the students of Science High School, strive incessantly to explore the deep, dark, undiscovered FRONTIERS of the Universe, in the hope that one day we will illuminate the path of Knowledge, making the unknown, known. We are determined to discover what there is to be found, to be learned, and to be accomplished by the exploration of the remaining Frontiers: the Atom, the Cell, the Seas, Space, and the outer reaches of the mind. These are the never-ending challenges we will encounter and accept in life. This is the heritage of Science High School and this is the tradition we hand to posterity.

Dedication

In recognition of his vision in conceiving the possibility of a unique and diversified institution of learning, of his perseverance in bringing this vision to reality, and of his relentless pursuit of scholastic excellence, we the first graduating class salute the Founder and Principal, Morris R. Lerner. We therefore dedicate this our first yearbook our final effort to

The SYNERGIST Views the FACULTY

Their inquiring minds.

Their neatness,

And above all, their sense of professional decorum.

It's always problems, problems, problems.

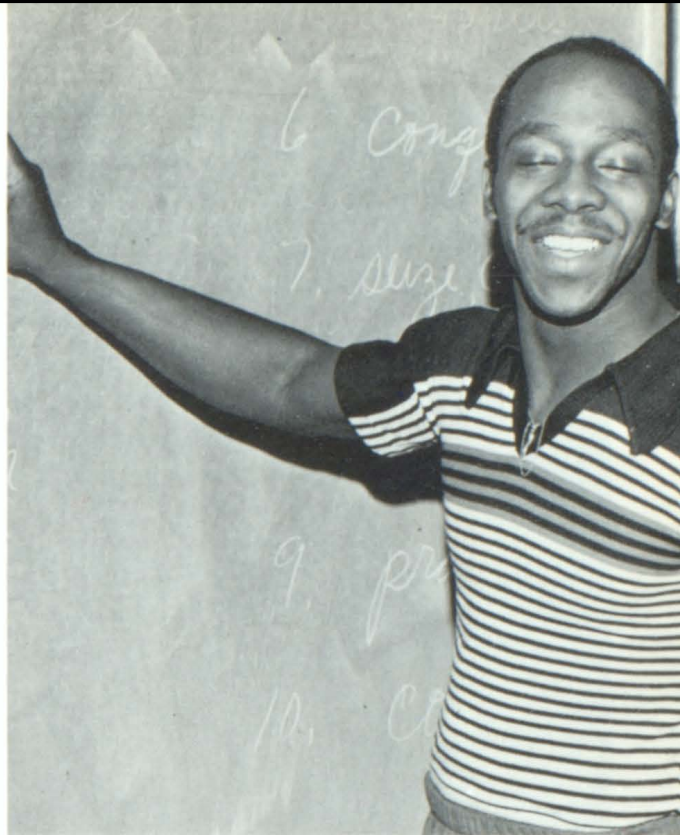

Once more and I'll get it right.

Well, it's perfectly clear to ME!

I could teach with my eyes closed.

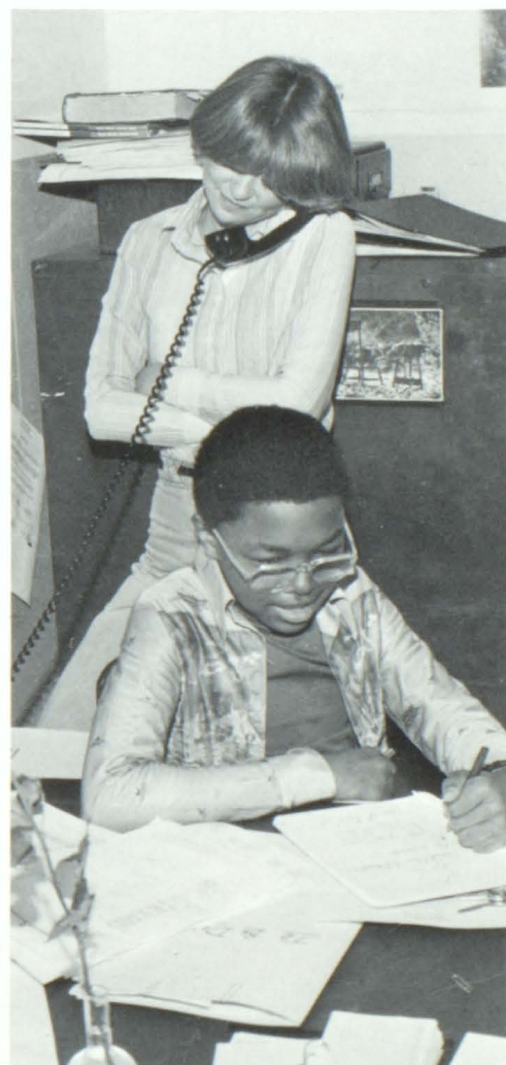

I DO teach with my eyes closed.

Dear Diary, Today I was Mr. Ballin, Mrs. Wing, Mr. Celiano . . .

Alright, who glued my finger to the board this time?

What's this about my being replaced?

Why can't I leave my seat?

Not now Frank, I'm on a ride.

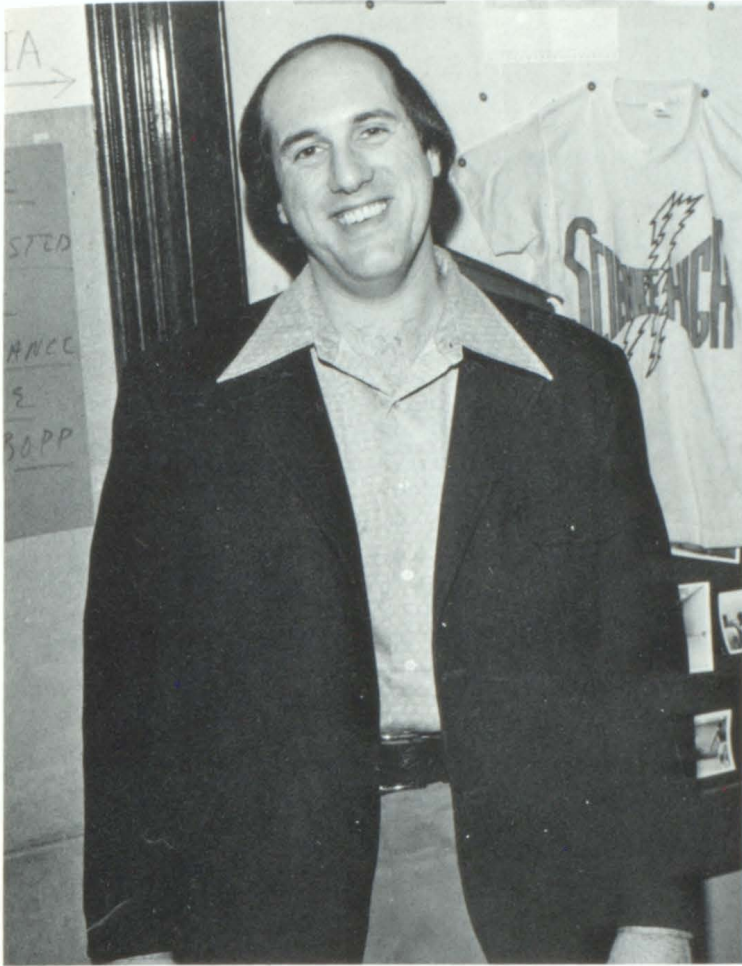

Excuse me while I disappear.

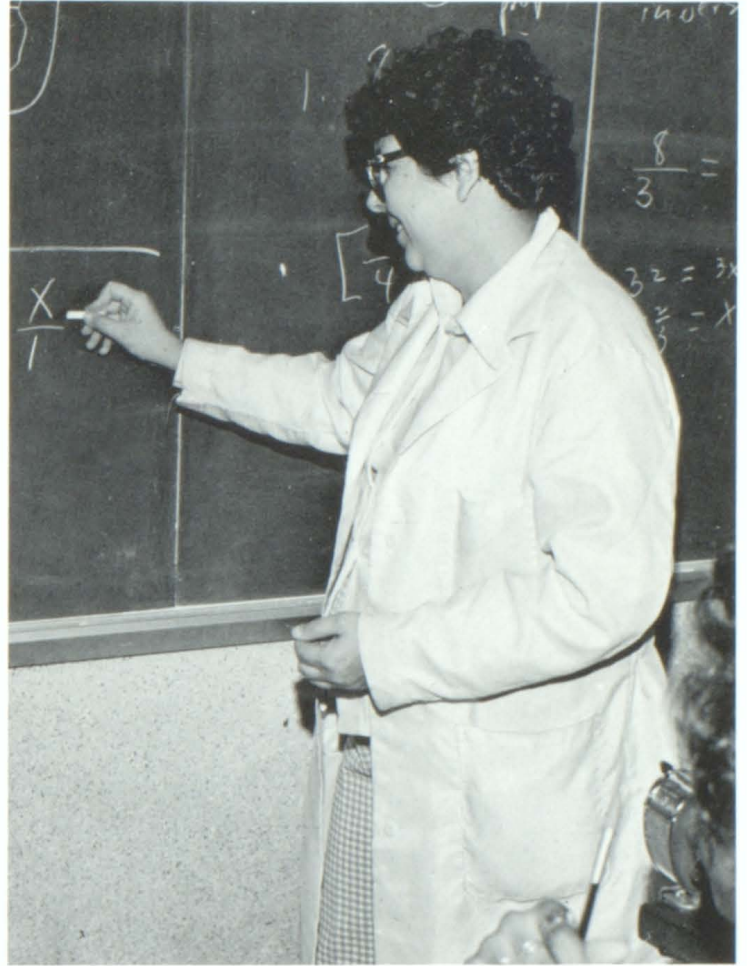

I AM smiling.

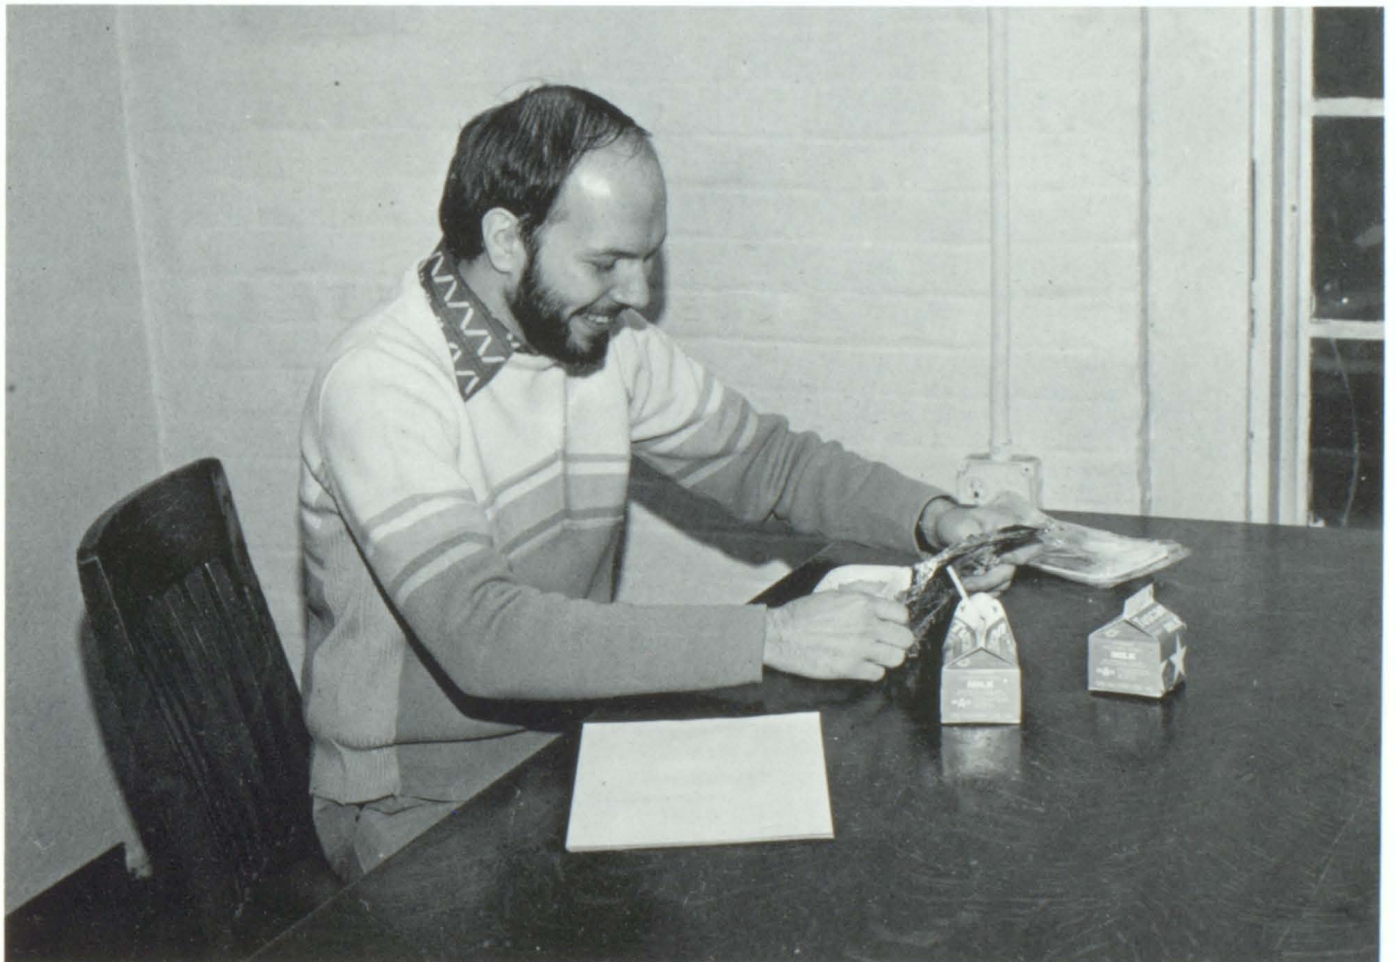

Oh yeah? So's your old man!

I love a parade!

I love you, X.

Parkay!

One false move and I'll ram this down your throat.

I know it's tough kid, but there's no senior prom.

I sure hope they send our replacements soon.

I wish they'd let me in the game.

Gotcha!

Mr. Clifton L. Paige

Lisa, is this 25 cents a line?

I wanted to be inconspicuous about this and this seems to be an opportune place. My purpose is to say thank you for the good times—and even some of the bad, because they helped me grow professionally and personally. The past four years represent a struggle of sorts by us to make this school work, but also between us, when I tugged one way and you pulled another. Know that I've expected from you the same things I thought others expected from me at your age. Standards are demanding and I would hope that through it all you knew what I wanted
most—your success.

Congratulations on your first step, graduation, and my every wish for a life that rewards YOUR expectations for yourselves. Just maybe, those expectations are mine, too.

Godspeed, First class,
Jeanne
